

Puff's Ride

It was time to feed Puff.

So Dick went out with her milk and began to call the kitten.

"Come, Puff! Come here!"

But Puff did not come to get her milk.

Then Dick began looking for her.

So did Jane.

"Here comes a man with a basket of things for Mother," said Jane.

"Let's ask him to help find Puff."

"Hello, children," said the man.

"Are you looking for me?"

"We are looking for Puff," said Dick.

"Do you know where she can be?"

"No, Dick," said the man.

"I wish I could help you find her. But I must go back to the store."

Up the street walked Big Bill.
"What are you doing?" he said.
"Are you looking for me?"

"We are looking for Puff," said Dick.

"She did not come to get her milk,
and we think she is lost."

"I don't think so," said Big Bill.
"Puff knows the way home.
Maybe the milkman saw her.
Let's ask him when he stops."

The milk wagon came to a stop,
and in it sat a yellow kitten.

"Hello," said the milkman.

"This kitten wanted a ride, and she jumped into my milk wagon."

Big Bill laughed and said, "Oh, Puff!
Maybe you wanted a ride.
But I think you wanted some of that milk in the wagon."

Puff did not say what she wanted.
She jumped out and ran home.
