

A Funny Girl

"Here we are at school," said Dick.

"I will help you find your room."

Dick found Peter and Ellen's room.

Then he said, "Now I must say good-by and go to my room.

But I will come back for you and take you home."

"Good-by," said Ellen.

"Good-by," said Peter.

Ellen was happy at school.

Peter was happy, too.

It was fun to work with the boys and girls.

Soon Ellen looked up.

She saw some girls go out.

She saw Peter go out with some boys.

"Oh, my! There go all the girls and boys," she said.

"It is time to go home to eat.

So I will go home, too."

Ellen ran out to find Dick.
She wanted to find Peter, too.
She wanted to go home
with the two boys.

Then Susan came out.
Some girls were with her.
"Hello, Ellen," said Susan.
"Please come and play."

Ellen said, "I cannot play now.
It is time to go home to eat.
All the boys and girls in my room
went home to eat."

"No, no, Ellen," said Susan.
"It is not time to go home to eat.
It is time to play and have fun.
First we work, and then we play.
Then we go back to work.
Then it is time to go home to eat."
Ellen laughed and laughed.
"What a funny girl I am!" she said.
"I do not know what time it is."
Then she ran to play with the girls.
